Tells It Plainly and Without Frills

Why a merchant, who has good goods for sale, wants to keep information about the goods confined to a comparatively few customers, is beyond the comprehension of any man who realizes the value of making known to the people the merit of good goods.

PLUCKY CONDUCTOR SAVES LIVES OF BABIES JUDGE COOPER TURNS DOWN VERDICT

FREAR NEAR END OF ISLAND TOUR

(Special Bulletin Wireless.)
HILO, Sept. 18.—Completing his tour of inspection with the exception of the Mahukona visit, Governor Frear left today overland for Mahukona, and will sail for Honolulu on the Mauna Kea next Friday, reaching Honolulu Saturday morning.

HAWAIIAN SUGAR MARKETS AT BIG PRICE

The first shipment of Hawaiian sugar to get to market under the present high price for the product reached the market last Saturday, according to advices received by the Sugar Factors' Association. This was the last half of the cargo of the Virginian, the first half having gone to the Eastern coast earlier. The last half amounted to 2000 tons.

Three cargoes are due any moment now and will be sold under the high prices existing. These cargoes are those of the American-Hawaiian freighter Massachusetts, 11,300 tons; the ship Frye, 5800 tons, and the bark Poohing Sney, 1700 tons.

No drop in prices is now expected by the association and the prospects are that all the rest of the 1911 crop from the islands will go in at a high figure.

TRIPP TO STAY ON WATERFRONT

Capt. A. N. Tripp, deposed as harbor-master by the board of harbor commissioners, will not quit the waterfront altogether, according to report today. It is said that W. R. Foster, the new harbor-master, has a place picked out for the veteran, and that his knowledge and experience in harbor affairs will be available, although he will not be at the head of things.

The vigorous protest from many business firms against the action of the commission, while it did not accomplish its ostensible aim of keeping Tripp in his job, showed that he has many strong friends in Honolulu business affairs, and his retention in some capacity will probably meet with general approval.

NORMAL SCHOOL SHOWS RECORD

By enrolling 156 students at the Normal school this morning a fresh record has been established for attendance. From the time the school opened they came pouring in until the high water mark was reached. Included in this there is also another record the senior class having thirty-nine enrolled for the present term. According to this morning's figures there are fifty-three freshmen, thirty-two sophomores, thirty-two juniors and thirty-nine seniors, making up the record total of 156 altogether.

A. H. Arleigh & Co. will be open until 8 o'clock every night this week to give school children a chance to buy school books and supplies.

QUICK ACTION SAVES 2 FROM DEATH ON RAILS

Lightning thought and prompt action on the part of Henry M. Honan, conductor on the Hotel street line of the Rapid Transit company, this morning saved the lives of two Japanese children, mere babies. A sudden crisis transformed Honan, a quiet, retiring sort of chap, into a hero who took desperate chances and snatched the children from the very jaws of death.

In doing so, Honan risked his own safety. He escaped with nothing but muddy clothes. One of the children was entirely unharmed. The other, a little boy named Makoto, three years old, was slightly bruised and cut on one foot.

Honan and his motorman, F. H. Olson, composed the crew of Car No. 44 on the Hotel street line today. It was just after 8 o'clock that the car passed through the city toward the terminus at Asia Park, inbound from Wai'alae.

As the car approached River street, running at the rate of seven or eight miles an hour on a down grade, two Japanese youngsters, hand in hand, toddled out from the curb into the muddy street and then, their baby eyes attracted by a mud-puddle beside the track, ran right ahead of the car upon the track.

Olson, the motorman, rang his gong, jammed the brakes and tried to stop the car, but there was no time.

Honan, standing on the rear platform, heard the gong. He looked up, saw the children and then without a second's hesitation dashed through the car and jumped ahead of it. His leap landed him beside the children. With his right arm he threw one of the children clear of the track. As he did so, the other, Makoto, fell and rolled between the back of the fender and the front wheels of the car, which was still moving slowly.

Honan then did the only possible thing. He flung himself on his face beside the car, half-holding to the car with one hand, reached under the car with the other, grasped the child by the back of its kimono and with a quick pull drew it from under the wheels. It was a matter of inches and seconds. So narrow was the escape that the front wheel scraped the baby's foot and cut it slightly. Two more inches would have crushed the leg; another foot would have killed the child.

Honan got to his feet with the child in his arms and seeing a policeman nearby, asked him to send the child to the hospital to have its foot cared for. The policeman was slow about it, so Honan stopped a passing automobile and sent the two children to the police station, whence one of them went to the hospital to have the foot dressed and the other was taken home.

This done, Honan and Olson got back on their car and picked up their day's work as if nothing had happened.

FORT RUGER GUNS WILL ROAR OUT TOMORROW FOR FIRST TIME

The big guns at Fort Ruger will roar out tomorrow morning for the first time in history. At nine o'clock the first actual gun practice at the mortar batteries will begin, and the guns will send the shells hurtling at an imaginary enemy out at sea.

Practice begins at nine o'clock. It will be continued on Wednesday, beginning at two o'clock. On each day there will be four trial shots at a fixed target, followed by ten shots at a moving target. Fourteen shots are to be fired each day, according to present plans. The trial shots are to be used as the basis for figuring on the shots at a moving target. An average of the four trial shots is taken as a basis for computation on the other shots.

The target is only fifteen by fifteen feet and will be towed 500 yards behind the naval tug Navajo. At a distance from Diamond Head it will appear only a small spot.

Major Timberlake of Fort Ruger said this morning that there is no need for people to feel alarmed in the slightest while the firing is going on, as there is no danger. In fact, people who want to see the practice can view it from Diamond Head road, watching where the shells strike after they have left the big guns.

BLANCHARD TO INSPECT MAUI KAUMAKAPILI PASTOR DEAD

Sans trumpets, sans announcement, sans everything except his boat ticket and a tooth brush, Food Commissioner Blanchard slipped away to Maui last night, where he is to conduct a pure food campaign as he did through Hawaii.

He reaches there this morning and immediately starts to work on Kahului and Wailuku. From there he goes to the plantation stores and later will cross over to Lahaina.

He will only take the target stores in during this trip and hopes to be able to get back here again by Wednesday next. Failing this he will catch the Mauna Kea at Lahaina and come up by her, arriving in Honolulu again with a basket of samples about Saturday.

FOUR CRUISERS MORE FOR FLEET?

Reports are afloat in local military circles to the effect that the Pacific cruiser fleet is to be increased very shortly by the addition of four armored cruisers now on the Atlantic coast. It is understood that the cruisers Washington, Montana, North Carolina and Tennessee, now comprising the fifth division of the Atlantic fleet, with Rear Admiral Sidney A. Stanton as commander, are likely to be ordered around the Horn.

Whether this will be done before the Pacific cruisers leave for Honolulu is not known, but an announcement of the new plan is expected at almost any time.

As the necessary number of battle-ships to form the Atlantic fleet are now in commission, the fifth division is not needed on the Eastern coast, with the result that the four cruisers have been placed in reserve and Rear Admiral Stanton has been ordered to other duty.

POSTOFFICE OFFICIALS TRYING TO RUN DOWN TENYO MARU MYSTERY

Investigations of the Pacific mails covering every transfer and every foot between here and the San Francisco postoffice have been set afoot by the department officials as the result of the loss of $100 from the Tenyo Maru. The gold, consigned to the Bank of Hawaii, from which the $100 in coin was missed on its arrival here, is now being traced with all the powers of the postal inspectors.

While the postoffice people say that the loss is not in itself important, the whole system of handling the mails on the ocean steamers is involved. This is what is causing the officials the most concern.

Postoffice Inspector Frank J. Hare, in charge at the local office, said today that as yet nothing has developed to ward locating the thief, if there is one. He said further that there is a possibility that the loss was not caused by a criminal, but by an accident.

"The gold was heavy and may have slipped open the sack. Sometimes the sacks are none too strong," he said today.

However, this is taken only as a possibility, and meanwhile, says Inspector Hare, the gold is being traced from the moment it left the San Francisco postoffice to the local office.

The postoffice officials are inclined to believe that the theft, if such occurred, did not take place anywhere in the vicinity of Honolulu. It is pointed out that the sacks were handled too rapidly and too openly from the steamer to the local office to allow any opportunity for the thief to rip the mail open.

Furthermore, it is considered probable that the thief must have known there was money in the sacks, which could not be known in advance here.

It was at first thought that a Japanese postal clerk on the Tenyo Maru in charge at the local office, said today might be able to throw some light on the loss, but it is now stated that money was in charge of the purser, W. H. Reid, and supposed to be under his own lock and key. Indications point, it is understood, further back than the Tenyo, and the San Francisco end of the tangle when unraveled is expected to furnish a clue.

In the meantime, the search is going on quietly but unrelentingly.

EVENING WATER CARNIVAL PLANNED

Director Arthur F. Wall of the 1912 in the morning and the lantern parade float parade is maturing plans for the evening celebration on the parade float that will fill out an entire day of merry-making and carnival. If the number of things in mind that he is Elks do not schedule an elaborate program for their carnival on the night of February 22, the Floral Parade management will arrange something in the nature of a water pageant and entertainment features on the waterfront that will be the most pretentious yet attempted.

It is probable that the Amateur Athletic Association will schedule a big and that the prospects are this day, which, together with the parade before.

JUDGE'S PROBE REVERSES THAT OF JURY

Declaring that no innocent man should be punished in his court, the verdict of the jury notwithstanding, Judge Henry E. Cooper this afternoon granted a new trial in the case of the Territory against Huakaiki, a Hawaiian who stands charged with criminal assault.

The case was before the Court this morning but was postponed until this afternoon when Judge Cooper told the court that he had visited the scene of the supposed assault and had interviewed several witnesses there before they could possibly have heard anything of the trial in town here.

He found a woman, who appeared an absolutely unbiased witness. She told him that she was standing in the yard of her house and saw the front door open and the accused man let out by the girl whom he was charged with mistreating. They stood talking for a time and then when they saw the woman, the man left. The girl went into the house.

He also saw the district magistrate and had him look up the records of the case when it first came before him. There the husband had testified that the whole of the conversation was in English whereas in the late trial he had stated that the conversation was in Hawaiian. There was also a resemblance to be traced between the words of the husband as given in evidence and the wording of the criminal statute.

The verdict of the jury shows, he says, that either it had doubts as to the veracity of the witnesses or else it had not sufficient evidence to go upon. "My conclusion," he said, "is not conflicting with the jury in any way as they could only go from the evidence as they saw it. This is the third case in which I have had to make an examination owing to lack of information offered by the defendant's attorneys. I do not propose that an innocent man shall be punished in my court, the verdict of the jury notwithstanding. It is a bad state of affairs when witnesses come into court prepared to swear away the liberty of their fellow countrymen."

Finally the motion for a new trial was granted, this course falling in with the approval of Deputy County Attorney Brown, who appeared for Attorney Cathcart.

SANITARY SURVEY OF HONOLULU STARTS

With the board of health and the sanitary commission cooperating, the sanitary survey, which will determine Honolulu's health conditions in fact, and facts, was begun this morning under a definite system.

Steady settled work with a view to knowing the details of every house, outbuilding, pig sty and piece of land under cultivation in Honolulu was started this morning by three of the board of health inspectors. When they have finished their work all will be placed on a long map which will be placed on a roller at the board of health offices and it will then be possible to know exactly the condition of any place within the Honolulu district.

The sanitary commission, of which ex-Governor George Carter is chairman, is working with the board of health on the proposition and from the data gathered and placed on the big map will base their report and recommendations to be presented at (Continued on Page 3)
